

About the program

EarthCraft is a comprehensive green building certification program tailored to the unique climate, energy, and water conditions of the southeastern United States. Developed by Southface and administered in Virginia by Viridiant, it provides a practical framework for sustainable construction across various building types, including single-family homes, multifamily units, and light commercial spaces.

Multifamily

EarthCraft Multifamily addresses both new constructions and renovations of multifamily projects. The program aims to create communities that are operationally cost-effective and efficient in terms of energy, water, and resources. Each certified unit includes dedicated fresh-air intake systems to optimize indoor air quality.

House

EarthCraft House focuses on enhancing the energy efficiency, durability, and comfort of single-family residences. The certification process involves third-party verification to ensure compliance with program standards, resulting in homes that are not only energy-efficient but also water- and resource-efficient.

Light Commercial

EarthCraft Light Commercial emphasizes resource-responsible design and construction practices for commercial buildings up to 80,000 square feet. The program offers intensive support during the design and construction phases, and projects undergo third-party field verification and diagnostic testing to confirm building efficiencies.
